About the FSD Symposium-Workshop

In 1985, Ted Fleming and Alejandro Estrada called an international meeting in Mexico of about 50 scientists studying the interactions between frugivores (fruit-eaters) and the seeds they disperse. The book published in 1986 resulting from this 1st International Symposium-Workshop on Frugivores and Seed Dispersal soon became a key reference for students and researchers around the world. The 2nd and 3rd Symposium-Workshop, in Mexico (1991) and Brazil (2000), respectively, demonstrated the growth in research on this important topic. The books published in 1993 and 2002 from these conferences have also been highly important texts for scientists, students and environmental managers. At the close of the 3rd Symposium the out-going committee decided to hold the next meeting in Australia. This provides an important opportunity for academics and managers west of the Pacific (e.g. Australia, southeast Asia) to meet with leaders in the field and new researchers from around the world, and also to demonstrate progress within this region. The 4th International Symposium-Workshop on Frugivores and Seed Dispersal was held in July 2005 at the Nathan campus of Griffith University, Brisbane, Australia, and the proceedings were published in 2007. During the last day of FSD2005, a vote of participants decided that FSD2010 will be held in Montpellier France, to celebrate 25 years of the Symposium-Workshop (1985-2010) and Pierre-Michel Forget accepted to chair it, invited a number of participants to help him as Academic committee, and later, invited other colleagues in France to compose the Organizing Committee.

Publications

The FSD symposium-workshop has built its reputation on the publication of a high-quality, widely-cited journal issues and books. The 5th edition will be published in a special issue of the journal Acta Oecologica (Elsevier).

Statement for the Symposium-Workshop

The ATBC is international in scope, membership, and objectives, functioning as an international body to promote research, education, conservation, and communication for tropical biology.

Objectives of the Symposium-Workshop

1. To promote an awareness, within as wide a public as possible, of the importance of tropical biology and conservation.
2. To promote research in all aspects of biology and conservation related to Frugivores and Seed Dispersal.
3. To promote education in biology and conservation.
4. To promote and improve communication and cooperation among investigators, educators, environmental managers, and human communities.
5. To inform and influence individuals and institutions whose decisions affect habitats and their biota.
6. To encourage the establishment, improvement, maintenance and accessibility of physical facilities, databases, and collections of biological materials for the study of biology and conservation.
7. To encourage the preservation of biological diversity and to safeguard it for posterity, for its intrinsic worth and its aesthetic and tangible values to humanity.

FSD2010 Sponsorship Opportunities

Gain exposure for your organization, demonstrate your commitment to tropical biology and conservation efforts, and enhance your visibility among influential leaders and decision-makers by supporting ATBC2008 Association to organize FSD2010.

General Symposium-Workshop Sponsorship

Organizations wishing to provide general support for ATBC2008 Association help defray the costs of the symposium-workshop, help to lower the registration fee for participants from developing countries and for students, allow the organizers to raise a fund to offer travel grants (see Travel awards) to participants from developed countries and for students, and provide support for an outstanding scientific program while supporting invited speakers in organized symposia. Meeting sponsors will receive acknowledgements on FSD2010.org Web site with the link to your Web site (see herebelow), their logo in the conference program and on printed promotional material (see Brochures) as part of their sponsorship package.
